ROME. Dec. 1 .- Pope Benedict XV has learned the conditions on which France and Germany are willing to consider peace proposals, according to reports here today. The French terms were made known to the pontiff by Cardinal Amette, archbishop of Paris, nearly a month ago, it is said, while those of Germany were brought to Rome by Cardinal von Hartmann, archbishop of Cologne, who is now here. As a result of the information he has received from the two prelates, the pope, according to the Idea Nazionale, hopes to find the basis for an armistice acceptable to both

An American "Loyalty Legion" Needed to Combat the Menace of Undigested Foreign Citizens

William Lustgarten, an American of German Parentage and the Leader of the Movement Against Dual Allegiance Explains How the "Hyphenated-American" Was Originated by Scheming Politicians

By William Lustgarten The Well-known New York Lawyer

TYTHY is the Hyphen? Since the beginning of the great war there has been much discussion regarding the divided loyalty of a group of American citizens of foreign birth or parentage. The problem of the hyphen has not been focussed by Americans of unqualified loyalty. fealty and patriotism. It has been forced upon us by those who have obstreperously set themselves apart as citizens with a prior allegiance to, and sympathy with, the land whence they

The monstrous menace of the hyphen has been recognized. It presents a serious problem. What the hyphen stands for is of ominous import, of fundamental danger to the peace and well-being of this country. Of so great menace is it that a number of Americans have joined in a movement to combat the idea of dual citizenship and to erase the hyphen absolutely and permanently from our national life.

What is the cause of hyphenated Americanism? Why is it bands of citizens set themselves apart under the brand of foreign nationalism? Why are there cliques of citizens who, because of foreign birth or extraction, act en masse, not as Americans, and as American voters, but as bands united in the mutuality of possessing a foreign blood?

Why are there citizens of German birth or extraction who have failed to become 100-percent Americans, retaining a conscious alleglance to their Fatherland greater than that to the country of their adoption? Why have they failed to merge into our national life, to think and feel as citizens solely of the United States? Why this unassimilability of a particular portion which have pressed themselves upon public notice of late, attacking and antagonizing the President in his policy of neutrality, and violating the American ideal of liberty and democracy and the spirit of neutrality incumbent upon all who align themselves under the Stars and Stripes?

There is no question as to the fact that a portion of citizens of foreign birth or extraction, especially those who call themselves German-Americans, have proved indigestible as a mass in the great crucible of American life. It takes some big event, some crisis, to bring the festering sores of society to a head. The European war has brought the evil of the hyphen to a head. We must now deal with it as with any other social evil, and it must be recognized as such. It was with this purpose that, in connection with other American citigens of foreign birth and extraction in New York, I recently started a movement calling upon American citizens of foreign birth or parentage to repudiate the hyphen and all for which it stands, to join in steps to fight the evil of dual citizenship and to join in a movement to promulgate the principles of absolute. sincere and undivided patriotism and fidelity to this great land. Our purpose is to found an organization, to be called the Loyal Legion, with branches in all the States. This Legion proposes to fight the idea of dual citizenship, whether it be English-Americanism, French-Americanism, Italian-Americanism or German-

Americanism. HOW THE HYPHEN CAME INTO BEING.

The hyphen is of American origin, of American manufacture. It was conceived and fostered in the United States. Singular as it may seem, the hyphen is not a product of Germanism, although an element of citizens of German birth or parentage have conspicuously adopted it, and to a degree marked by citizens of no other nationality in the United States. So far as citizens of German origin in other countries are concerned we do not find the hyphen. Before the war German citizens of England did not call themselves German-English, or of France, German-French, or of Italy, German-Italians. The blame for the hyphen in America must not be laid so much with the Germans as with American professional poli-

The origin of the hyphen dates back to the time of the Civil War when professional politicians and political leaders endeavored to get control of the vote of a number of people in masses. They attempted to sway voters of German extraction in a body, of Italians, Irish,

French and other elements likewise. It was a feasible political expedient to band men of various national inheritances, and to appeal to societies, clubs and other organizations consisting of members of various racial origins. This practice developed so that today when a political party goes to make up its ticket it selects candidates representing these various elements so as to corral each particular vote. Candidates are thus too often selected for office, not because of their fitness for that office, but because of their popularity among, and appeal to. certain hyphenated classes.

It was an effective expedient, indeed, for professional politicians thus to appeal to racial and national sympathies, and thus sway entire bands of men-in the earlier days, more than now, voters who had just received their citizenship. But this act of politicians, treasonable to the United States, is responsible for the existence of hyphenated citizenship and the danger that hyphenated citizenship now confronts us with. The hyphen has obtruded itself upon us of late particularly in connection with an element of citizens of German birth or extraction. It is true the sense of a divided allegiance is not so marked among elements of other racial connections. It does not distinguish citizens of Italian, Irish, French and other national affiliations or relationships to the degree that it does this class of socalled German - Americans.

While American politicians must bear the blame of the origin of the hyphen, it must be admitted that citizens of German birth or parentage are guilty more than any others for this divided allegiance, this half-hearted loyalty, this hindering of the development of simonpure Americanism. They have been guilty more than any others in failing to maintain the principles of strict neutrality advocated by the President. They have been guilty, in many instances of breaking both the spirit and the letter of that neutrality, of casting their oaths of citizenship to the winds in defending, upholding and supporting a foreign and monarchical power whose ideals are the antithesis of those of the United States, and secretly and in alliance aiding and plotting with agents of that monarchy. For this there are certain reasons. For the unassimilability of this class into the fabric of our national being there are certain causes. THE INDIGESTIBLE "IDEAL" OF GERMANY.

Why is it a certain group of citizens, of German birth or parentage, have remained mentally apart from American thought and feeling? What is it that psychologically hedges in a certain type of German mind, rendering it peculiarly inaccessible and isolated? What is it that makes it subscribe to everything that is German, everything for which Germany stands and everything which Germany doesright or wrong-prior to anything that is American, the ideals of this Republic and the neutral point of view this country, in its relations to foreign powers, advocates? Here we have a singular problem—a problem to be solved only by its consideration.

The German, or I should say Prussian. training for the last forty years, from the time of Bismarck, has been to drill men so that they work in the manner of machinery. and this training shows on the surface wherever Germans may go. In Germany the socalled cultured classes support the ruling power, which has no regard for the masses save as working machines. In the form of a paternalistic government they take care of the workers that they may remain efficient, just as they care for cattle and horses. It is the system of the ruling power, not of the man at the bottom. Germany more than any nation to-day represents a one-man government.

Under the German system of state control we have Socialism worked out to its highest degree. Human beings are trained to work in the mass; they are cared for in the mass as beasts are cared for and fed, with every necessity provided; they are trained to think and work in the mass, as parts of the machine not as individuals. You will find that the Socialists have a tremendous vote in Germany. and that the greatest number of Socialists throughout the world are German. The only deviation from the Socialist programme in Germany is that the operating government is long as individual development is fostered among a people you have a virile citizenship. When that spirit is crushed in the exploitation of the mass that people will

The reason that the Jews have survived is because as a people they have not been subjected to despotical rulers nor exploited in a mass by a single power. They enjoyed that freedom which gives the impetus of individual expression and survived for that reason.

In German schools, colleges and universities the so-called "German ideal" is fed to a degree that Germans grow up believing that education and culture live and die with them. Convinced that their system is the best, their mental attitude is superior to that of all other peoples. Consequently they become mentally hide-bound, insular and unable to appreciate any other point of view than their own. They are trained to work as units in a mass and to be cared for in that organized, paternally caredfor mass. They are unable to think as individuals, to form and reflect indivibual opinions. Their government is handed down to them; it is not the conscious government of a free people. At the head of the Socialistic scheme of Germany is a ruler who does not rule by the elective will of the organized masses even, but, as he proclaims, by divine dispensation.

AMERICAN IDEALS A CONSCIOUS ATTAINMENT.

Germans arrive in the United States with this so-called ideal ingrained in them. They think as Germans; as Germans they feel themselves apart from the heterogeneous peoples with whom they come in contact here. Do they attempt to mingle with this heterogeneous body which constitutes our citizenship? No. They flock together-in clubs, singing societies, political organizations, even churches, Domestically they continue to live as in the Fatherland-the surface expression of the fundamentally ingrained and isolating German spirit; among themselves, even as they eat German food, they converse in the German

All this is less true of other nationalities-Irish, French. Italian-who drift into American organizations and adopt the American idea. The hyphenated distinction is peculiar with the Germans who adopt the United States as their home. Other nationalities assimilate much more quickly. For, unlike them, the Germans come with the belief that their government is the ideal government, and our own system and ideals inferior.

In the United States we have a good deal of political corruption. But when we do get good government we get it through our inner consciousness, by effort, by strugsle and we know what it means. Here, with all our corruption, the individual fights his own battles; he makes good by his own efforts, and when he attains success it is consciously. This is the difference between the German Socialistic ideal and the Americal ideal: the difference between a nation of people cared for and trained as children and a nation wherein every man works out his own salvation. These are the two ideals struggling in this war.

The hyphen constitutes a danger in our national life. So long as there are elements of people cherishing a clinging allegiance to a foreign power, we cannot count in times of trial upon the undivided loyalty of those elements. Should the United States become involved with a European power, we should not know whom to trust either in military or civil life. If the assertions concerning the extent of the spy systems conducted by foreign governments are true to a tenth degree we cannot tell whether our neighbor is an agent of a foreign government or not. In case of war we should be compelled to suspect almost every one whose parents came from Europe. The point has been made that foreign-born citizens should not be put under the suspicion that the oath of allegiance they took in assuming citizenship was a perjury. This charge has been made-I fear in certain cases justly. With the espionage systems of Europe in operation America has actually much to fear, and in case of trouble, so long as the hyphen exists, we cannot tell where and when traitors

Inasmuch as more and more, during this war, foreign-born citizens have been looked upon with suspicion, it occurred to me that all suc's citizens should take occasion to put themselves on record as cherishing no loyalty to the country of their origin greater than that to the country of their adoption, and that with them, absolutely and unqualifiedly, it is "America first." The time to start such a movement arrived. I sent out my appeal. The responses have been amazing. I have received thousands of letters from all parts of the country endorsing my plan and repudiating the idea of dual citizenship. Ninety per-cent of these letters have come from citizens of German origin.

OSTRACIZE THE HYPHEN.

For the safety of our country, for the preservation of peace, for international amity and the strengthening of our own integrity, the hyphen must be erased. What can be done? The first step must come from public officials and political leaders. Public officials, as officials, from the President down, should ignore all functions given by hyphenated societies. As politicians in the past have encouraged such organizations, now-realizing they are unpatriotic and might on occasion prove treasonable-they should put the ban upon them. Politicians must be brought to understand that by fostering hyphenated organizations they are encouraging anti-Americanism.

The disapproval—as the original approval must come first from official sources. If the mayors of cities, office holders, politicians, political workers and all good Americans likewise, refused to attend the functions of hyphenated societies they would begin to bring home to the minds of the members that, if they wish to be Americans, they must drop the names of the countries whence they came. This applies to Irish-American, Italian-American. French-American, German-American and all hyphenated American organizations. I would advocate that no corporate entity be given societies bearing hyphenated names. There is no room for such societies in the United States, nor is there any reason for them. It would be quite legitimate for citizens of a foreign country, as visitors here, to belong to organizations bearing the names of their countries; in that case they should not be allowed to parade under the name American, qualified or not. It is proper for German citizens residing or visiting here to be loyal to their country. Those who have foresworn allegiance, however, cannot entertain a mental reserva-

To remove the hyphen we must exterminate the root of it. The Hohenzollern ideal of the divine rule of kings crowned by the Almighty with the Socialist ideal of human beings trained to work and be cared for in the mass must be eradicated by education. And by education those who have been trained into the belief that these ideals are the best must be brought to see the greater standards of America-of liberty, equality, democracy; of individual freedom, effort and attainment.

Those now holding themselves apart must be brought to thrill with American enthusiasm and to respond with a whole heart to the principles for which this nation has bled and on which it bases its future. They must see that there can be no divided citizenship, and that if they are to be Americans in their devotion, affection and loyalty, America must be
